IV. NEW BUSINESS

A. Complaints

13-070-9034 - a consumer left a state operated facility more than six months ago. Two months ago a social worker from that facility called the consumer to say that they had his property and would be contacting him again soon to deliver all items. Since that time the consumer hasn't heard a word from the Social Worker. He called the Social Worker and the facility Director and asked them to return call and no one will respond to him. The consumer has a list of all property that includes 100 DVDs, an x box and 50 games, office chair, and two MP3 players and two pair of Sony headphones.

13-070-9035 - an agency recently moved a consumer from one city to another after she was evicted. Under new CILA rules consumers do not have to attend day training but may opt for in house training. The agency is providing that training at a different agency home that can accommodate several individuals. The consumer is not ambulatory and, in part, because of her size cannot be transferred to a bathroom stool. On more than one occasion when the consumer has had an accident she has had to sit in wet and soiled undergarments for a long period of time until a staff member can be freed to put her in a van and take her home where a Hoyer lift can be utilized to move her to and from a toilet.
